Congressman Slaughter Opposed By Truman For Refusing To Aid Measures

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 7.—(INS)—President Truman's victory in the fifth Missouri district in yesterday's primary election was opposed by the chief executive because, Mr. Truman said, the congressman had opposed many of his legislative recommendations. Slaughter is a member of the powerful house rules committee.

Loses By 2000
Slaughter went down to defeat in his contest with Enos Axtell, a comparatively unknown lawyer of Hickman Mills, who was endorsed by the president and supported by James Pendergast political faction. With only three out of 255 precincts in the district unreported, the vote was:
Axtell 19,349, Slaughter 17,328.
The third candidate in the race for the Democratic nomination, Jerome Walsh, Kansas City attorney, had 5,336 votes.

Slaughter conceded victory to Axtell, saying, "It is apparent that he has a majority."
The president in his political fight with Slaughter said that if the congressman was right in his attitude toward the White House program then he, the president, was wrong.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Rapid progress is being made on the Route 422 by-pass from East Washington street down through Taylor street, Pa. Newc notes. The upper portion of the street from East Washington to Cunningham avenue is ready to receive a topping of asphalt.

Just one year ago tomorrow, Russia declared war on Japan, with the Japanese announcing surrender just six days later on August 14.

Several large loads of building lumber have been noted by Pa. Newc going through the city in the past few days. One large load parked on East Washington street was drawing a lot of long looking looks from several ex-G.I.s who have been waiting on the lumber.

Pa. Newc notes that corn roasts, which have been few and far between thus far this summer, are really getting under way. Many of the corn patches of the district are just right for picking, with farmers having quite a call for the large golden or white ears.

In a talk with Mrs. Norman Houk of R. D. 1, Ellwood, Pa. Newc learned that Mrs. Houk's husband and his father, Frank H. Houk, threshed oats the other day to the tune of 83 bushels to the acre on a five acre plot and 79 bushels per, on a six acre lot. The grain was machine counted so there is no doubt concerning the accuracy of the count. Mrs. Houk reported that they were amazed at the yield this year. Walt McQuiston did the threshing.

Miner Runs Amok, Blasts Windows

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 7.—(INS)—A coal miner was in jail at Greensburg today charged with shooting down chandeliers blasting out window panes and generally damaging his brother-in-law's home.
State police said that Jacob Baughman, 37, of Wyano, announced his arrival at the home of his brother-in-law, R. Eckenrood, of nearby Sligo, by shooting out the porch light. Once inside he blasted at everything until he ran out of shotgun shells.
Meanwhile Eckenrood and his family fled and neighbors succeeded in overpowering Baughman.

MUROO DRY LAKE, Cal., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Vastly increased emphasis on the guided missiles program of the United States armed forces was foreseen today following the successful Hawaii-California pilotless flying fortress dash.

The radio-controlled 2,500-mile flight—first and longest of its kind in air forces history—marked a historic point in the development of "push-button" warfare techniques. It is believed that developments in the wake of the simulated attack yesterday on the California coast will have sweeping effects on every branch of the armed services.

VICTORY SEEN FOR KILGORE IN WEST VIRGINIA PRIMARY

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Democratic Senator Harley M. Kilgore, who was backed by the CIO-PAC for his second term, today was virtually assured his renomination in the West Virginia primary election.

Unofficial returns from 1906 of the state's 2799 precincts gave Kilgore 77,159 votes to his Democratic opponent, J. Buhl Shahan's 18,017. On the Republican side of the ballots, youthful Thomas Sweeney, a Wheeling insurance executive, polled 48,476 to 24,627 for Claude R. Hill, 10 times mayor of Oak Hill.
The six incumbent congressmen claimed renomination on the basis of the incomplete returns. Two were without opposition.

It was a tremendous educational experience, which I expect will be of the greatest value to me in the Senate.

Byrd, Woodring, Kilgore, Among Primary Winners In State Contests

(By International News Service)

Final tabulations of primary votes cast in five states—Kansas, Missouri, New Hampshire, Virginia and West Virginia—were made today, with the final outcome in doubt in only one instance.

In New Hampshire almost complete returns gave Gov. Charles M. Dale, seeking to return to the gubernatorial mansion, a plurality of less than 1,000 votes over Congressman Sherman Adams, and a recount to determine the Republican candidate seemed almost certain.

Mayor P. Clyde Keefe of Dover, won the Democratic nomination for governor of New Hampshire.

In Missouri the spotlight was focused on the race in the Fifth district for the Democratic nomination for Congress. Enos Axtell, attorney from Hickman Hills and a political

Tension Grows In London-Palestine

British Policy Stiffens; Arouses Jewish Ire To Higher Pitch

MAY REFUSE TO ADMIT 2,000 JEWS

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Palestine problems virtually monopolized London's press today as dispatches from the Holy Land indicated a stiffening of policy toward illegal Jewish immigration.
Interest in the Holy Land was heightened by the fact that a special cabinet meeting has been called to discuss the entire situation.
Reports to the Daily Sketch from Haifa indicated that the Palestine government has prepared two large camps on the island of Cyprus to accommodate "large numbers" of Jews.

Blockade Runners Intercepted
The dispatch said Royal Navy units have already headed off two blockade runners to Palestine and are escorting them to the island. More than 2,000 immigrants are to be aboard the vessels.

The newspaper said establishment of camps on Cyprus may mean that an additional 2,000 Jews now aboard five ships at Haifa may be denied entry to Palestine.
"Dispatches from Jerusalem said that all British officers living in private homes and apartments in the Holy City have been ordered to move into "reasonably protected" quarters following an unsuccessful

It was also revealed that verdgreen uniforms for winter, off-post wear have been decided upon as the outfits which will best enhance members of the Women's Army Corps. Public aid is being enlisted in choosing design and styling.

The war department said that peacetime authorization of blue uniforms for ranks of the army "from private to general" is planned for the future. The announcement said:

'American Farmer' Limping To Port

Crippled Freighter Reported Heading For Falmouth Under Own Power

LONDON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—A reporter for the London Daily Express flew over the crippled freighter American Farmer today and reported the vessel was gamely making its way toward the British port of Falmouth.

The four and one-half million dollar salvage prize was said to be some 275 miles from Landsend, plowing through heavy swells under its own power.

A treasury solicitor has intervened in the British-American salvage dispute over the derelict Farmer, and U. S. Lines spokesman said the case will probably be fought out in the courts.

The Express' reporter said that when he radioed a request for a story from the stricken craft, its American crew answered:

"Sorry, that's prohibited old man."

The reporter said the vessel's bows were just above white-breaking rollers, but that her stern was high in the water, with the propellers "half in the air."

He said everything aboard seemed battered down, and that the American Ranger, who placed the rescue crew aboard the Farmer, could be seen half a mile ahead.

Two tugs—one presumably the Elizabeth, which claims first salvage money—was said to be following the Farmer and keeping the stricken craft in the beams of powerful searchlights.

Canners To Strike For Closed Shop

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 7.—(INS)—CIO union workers at the Campbell Soup Co., one of the world's largest canneries, were pledged today to go on strike next Monday to enforce their demands for a closed shop.

The walkout, voted three weeks ago, was ordered by the Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers following the collapse of contract negotiations with the soup firm.
More than 5,500 workers in Camden would be affected by the strike, which company officials said would doom a $5 million tomato crop, "anger" farmers, and impair the national food supply.

An FTA spokesman announced that 4,000 union employees in Campbell's Chicago cannery would go on strike "at a later date."

Veteran Virginia Senator Assured Of Third Term, Wins Virginia Primary

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia stood assured today of a third full term in the senate.

Byrd's opponent in the Virginia Democratic primary, Martin A. Hutchinson of Richmond, was decisively beaten, with returns from 1095 of the state's 1718 precincts showing:

Byrd, 103,830 Hutchinson, 58,405

Tantamount To Election

Rep. Howard W. Smith, like Byrd an advocate of government economy and a bitter foe of left wing elements, won renomination in the eighth district. Returns from 174 of the district's 217 precincts gave Smith 15,022 votes to 3596 for his nearest opponent, Mrs. Elizabeth Chilton Murray.

As in other southern states, victory in the Democratic primaries is tantamount to elections in Virginia.

The representative has been mentioned as a possibility for the unexpired term of the late Sen. Carter Glass. Smith's demonstration of strength in the primary was viewed as increasing his chances of entering the senate.

Kilday Predicts Universal Training Bill Will Pass

In Next Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Rep. Kilday, (D., Texas), predicted today that a universal military training bill would pass in the next session of Congress.

Kilday, a member of the House Military Affairs committee, also forecast a regular army of more than 800,000 men made up entirely of volunteers.

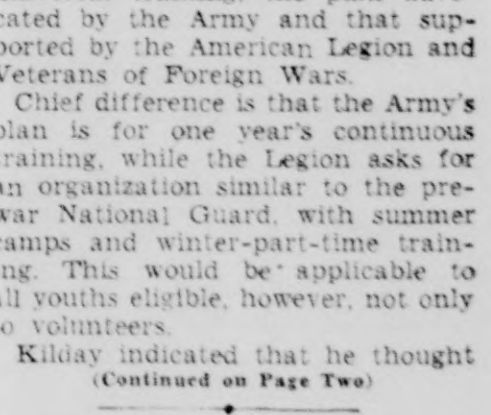

The Texas congressman emphasized that the universal training would be a civilian affair—that the trainees would remain civilian. This is a feature of both major plans for universal training, the plan advocated by the Army and that supported by the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Chief difference is that the Army's plan is for one year's continuous training, while the Legion asks for an organization similar to the pre-war National Guard, with summer camps and winter-part-time training. This would be applicable to all youths eligible, however, not only to volunteers.

Kilday indicated that he thought

CALLS FOR REALISM IN FOREIGN POLICY

I wish every member of Congress might be able to make such a trip. Confusion and distrust. Almost everywhere we traveled, we found confusion and distrust. In some countries changes in government were almost continuous. Currency inflation, caused by the ravages of war and the reckless spending of irresponsible demagogues in power, were almost universal. Such unsound financial policies were pushing the cost of living beyond the reach of the average man. They are hindering efforts at reconstruction.

Nevertheless, we saw many hopeful signs of progress. This year's harvests are generally very good, and should remove the specter of famine. In many countries such as Japan, the rapid progress toward clearing away the debris and reconstructing normal life is evident. The people there seem to be working with energy and a will under our military government to restore their country.

In some countries the waste and loss of UNRRA supplies has been tremendous. It is apparent that many of the sacrifices made by the American people to feed the world have merely served to feed the power and wealth of those in control. In view of the bountiful harvests, it is clear that UNRRA and other direct aid on a government level should be brought to a close at the end of this year. In those cases where aid is still required, such as Greece, I have no doubt that assistance on a personal basis, through private relief organizations, racial groups, and churches will be forthcoming.

Urges Realism. The world will of course continue to look to America for assistance, and I believe we should continue to lend constructive help, so far as we can without irreparable damage to our own economy. However, it is more essential than ever before that we frame our foreign loans and aid policies with the utmost realism.

Any future foreign loans which may be made should be on a sound economic basis, similar to the policy so successfully followed in connection with loans on railroads, power plants, mines, etc., all over the world by the British for the past 200 years or more.

four days later; and how he committed scores of burglaries.

Wanted Thrill. The 17-year-old youth said his nocturnal prowls were in the pursuit of an abnormal "thrill." And he amazed a select, blue-ribbon "confession" panel by telling how he wrestled with an alter ego he had created in the shadowy other half of his mind. He called the alter ego "George"—and when pressed for a last name after his arrest his "wicked half" became "George Murman."

Heirens told Tuohy that Murman was a fictional character created in his own imagination, but that "he was very real to me."

After his startling admission, Heirens calmly re-enacted the Degnan, Brown and Ross slayings—recreating horrible details while retracting his movements at the scenes of the crimes.

Throughs of curious and some outraged citizens followed Heirens' macabre walk down the trail of the bloody crimes which shocked the nation. There were sporadic boos and hisses.

Through it all, Heirens displayed his poker-face, but there was an unconscious puffing out of the chest and narrowing of the eyes which has marked intermittent defiance by the confessed slayer.

To Be Arraigned. As the matter now stands, Heirens is slated for arraignment August 14 on murder indictments in the Degnan and Brown slayings.

But it was reported that a joint request of the state and defense will be made of Chief Justice Harold G. Ward for the appointment of four psychiatrists to examine Heirens.

If the psychiatrists report Heirens criminally insane, a jury trial on his sanity would result. If the jury agreed with the psychiatrists, he would be sent to the state asylum at Chester, Ill.

On the other hand, if, as expected, Heirens is not found criminally insane, present arrangements call for him to plead guilty before Judge Ward.

Then Heirens would be expected to draw three life sentences, to run consecutively with no hope for parole—a fate which would remove him forever from society.

Washington, Aug. 7.—President Truman was back at the White House today after upsetting early indications that he would enter into the Missouri political storm and after running into another kind of storm on his return to Washington.

The chief executive's four-engine plane, the "Sacred Cow," ran into a violent local thunder storm late Tuesday that gave the presidential ship a rough and perilous journey during the last half hour of its flight.

The presidential plane made it without difficulty, however, and landed in a drenching downpour shortly before 7 p. m. EST.

can get together on critical questions and find agreement.

One of the first issues to be faced today was a Yugoslavia attempt to promote an amendment under which an allied state bordering on an enemy state whose treaty is under discussion can submit an appeal on defense claims directly to the ministers' council.

The proposed amendment was viewed as a move to guard against a possible adverse decision on Trieste, whose ultimate disposition is of vital importance to Yugoslavia and a major issue in the Paris deliberations.

A heated exchange of words between Secretary of State Byrnes and Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov preceded the decision to permit simple majority recommendations.

To Print Speech. Byrnes attacked Molotov for attempting to dominate other nations at the peace parley, and challenged the Russian statesman to have his speech printed in Russia.

Molotov accepted the challenge. He said "we will publish every word of it."

Several amendments to the British plan were submitted by the "Russian bloc" as part of a drive to forestall adoption of majority procedure, but these were voted down.

The vote on the simple majority provision was 16 to 6, with one abstention. The two-thirds provision was carried unanimously.

unknown until he received the backing of President Truman, was conceded the nomination by incumbent Rep. Roger C. Slaughter of Kansas City. Slaughter had opposed many of the President's legislative recommendations.

Incumbent U. S. Senator Frank P. Briggs won the Democratic nomination for the post, and will be opposed in November by James P. Ken of Kansas City, the GOP winner.

Kansas returns were slow, but in the principal contests former Gov. and secretary of war Harry Woodring was assured of the Democratic nomination for governor, and Congressman Frank Carlson held a commanding lead in his quest for return to Washington by the Republicans.

Harry F. Byrd was assured of a third full term in the Senate, Democratic nomination being tantamount to election in Virginia. Also assured of return to Washington was Rep. Howard W. Smith, like Byrd an advocate of government economy.

Democratic Senator Harley M. Kilgore was virtually assured of re-nomination in West Virginia, and his GOP opponent will be Thomas Sweeney, of Wheeling. Two of the six incumbent congressmen were unopposed, and all claimed re-nomination.

Constable Fires At Fleeing Man

When the dark of night was blazed by several revolver shots in Smith street, along the Neshannock creek last night, a telephone alarm sent police hurrying to the vicinity. It was found, according to policemen, that Fifth Ward Constable James Gnocchi had fired several bullets at a man who fled up the hillside east of the P. R. R.

According to the constable's story to city police, he said "he had heard over the radio a wild man had escaped from a prison in this district." He said that "the man at whom he shot wore a white striped shirt like the one who allegedly fled prison."

Police scoured the district and said the only persons they discovered in the district were a man and a woman in a parked auto.

Accident Rates Being Doubled

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7.—(INS)—The Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation today charged that accident rates have more than doubled in their four captive mines during the current drive to unionize mine bosses.

E. R. Cooper, general mine superintendent, sought to show charts as exhibits before a National Labor Relations board trial examiner. He said he hoped to point out that during the unionization drive the bosses have ceased to report violations of safety rules by rank and file miners.

At a news conference in his Oakland office, the west coast industrialist declared:

Will Tell Story. "I will tell the real story, which has never been heard before, to the congressional committee, and the character assassins can then tell their story—all of us speaking under oath—where equity prevails."

"I hope that congress will then want another investigation, so that the people will know the facts about steel."

Bridges said that Kaiser "owed" the Reconstruction Finance Corporation 115 million dollars and added that when there is large-scale borrowing and profits "there always is the chance of profiteering."

Kaiser replied today that he has repaid $17,780,000 of the $111,805,000 RFC loan for the Fontana steel plant in California. He said he has no other obligations to the RFC and an additional $18 million is already earmarked for the RFC for Fontana to be paid when due.

Story Behind The Lines

The record of heroism and sacrifice by the men who faced the Nazis and Japanese in the war is now a fact of history. The sordid story of what went on behind the lines is just beginning to come out. The story is not one in which any American can take pride, but it should, and must, be brought into the open.

The Senate committee investigating war contract frauds has only scratched the surface, but it has brought out some interesting exhibits—the Garson munitions empire that pyramided a borrowed letterhead into millions in war contracts; Rep. Andrew J. May, using his influence as chairman of the House Military Affairs committee to see that the Army took care of his friends who, it appears from the record, expressed their appreciation generously. Army officers who collected their travel and subsistence allowances from the War department, but let war contractors pick up the check, and Rep. John M. Coffee collecting $2,500, variously described as a "slip of paper," a "campaign contribution"—but not reported as such—and a "gift," from a man who had obtained a war contract.

The atmosphere in Washington, at a time when men were dying on the beaches and in the hedgerows, was such that Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren told the Senate committee that "it looked as though everybody and his brother were out to get the government." The chairmen of the committee, the conniving politicians, the lobbyists schemed and pulled wires in the cocktail lounges to enrich themselves and their friends.

Ethics, if not morals, had taken a holiday. The reward of conscientious honesty was a transfer to Nebraska. "Time after time," said Mr. Warren, "an efficient, careful contracting officer, who was seemingly trying to protect the interests of the government, was taken off his job and sent somewhere else."

All this was the fruit of an era of ignore-the-cost, spend-spend and elect-elect, an era of special privilege and favoritism whose pattern had been set by those in high places. The urgency of war only accentuated that tendency. War brings waste, and never had there been such a war as this, of such waste.

It is a tribute to the patriotism of the American people whose hard work is paying the bills that the war was won. And it would be the gravest error to assume that all government officials and all high Army officers were like those dredged up by the Senate committee. The majority were honest, true to their code, and doing their best to win the war—just as most manufacturers were bending every effort to that end and trying to do it as efficiently and economically as they were permitted, just as the men in the front lines were doing their duty.

"It is justice to these Americans, the chiselers and the grafters and the wasters should be exposed mercilessly—both as a lesson for the future and as testimony that the people of the United States are not cynical about the ideals of public service or calloused to the betrayal of the highest trust. The nation owes that to those who worked, to those who sacrificed and to those who died."

Word Of Honor?

When Capt. Harold Cobin and Lieut. George E. Wyatt, United States Army officers on duty in Berlin, disappeared more than a month ago, Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, American military governor of Germany, made direct inquiry of Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, his Russian opposite number. Later General McNarney told American newspapermen who questioned him about the missing officers.

"In view of the fact that a very senior Russian commander has assured me that he does not have them in custody, I must accept his word. If I should make the same assurance to the Russians, I would not expect them to say in effect that I was telling an untruth."

Now Captain Cobin and Lieutenant Wyatt have been released after having been imprisoned for 26 days by Russian military authorities who questioned them relentlessly, trying to make them "confess" to espionage.

So General McNarney has had an interesting lesson in what Americans have been advised—by left-wingers—to study, to win: The art of "understanding the Russians. When General McNarney, an American officer and gentleman, gives his word, he is telling the truth, completely and without reservation. When a Russian officer—even a "very senior commander"—gives his word, it is up to the other fellow to understand that trying to hold a Russian to his word is a dirty fascist trick.

Greatest Of Sales

It is a satisfaction to learn that the Army's grand clearance sale, the disposal of surplus goods, has greatly quickened its pace since the commissioners made their previous report to Congress. So far, in foreign countries alone, more than a billion dollars has been returned to the Treasury as a result of selling left-over war materials scattered throughout approximately 120 points where American soldiers were stationed.

Inasmuch as it never was expected that these goods would bring prices even remotely resembling their face value, nobody will be surprised by the announcement that proceeds are about 35 cents on the dollar. Dean Acheson, the acting secretary of state, thinks it is an "outstanding achievement" that the commission has done as well as it did. He explains that some of the material has deteriorated to the point where it is virtually worthless and that much of it is in small demand.

Columbia, in South America, has a well trained diplomat, called Angel. Sounds like he's about the only man who could get along with all parties at a meeting of the Big Four.

Number of visitors to Yellowstone Park shattered all records in July with a total of more than 160 thousand. There seems to be a last trip left in many an old jalopy.

In Canada, they are weeding the reds out of Parliament. One member who sent war secrets to Russia has been given a six-year sentence to repent his folly.

If economists who predict this boom will be followed by a "bust" are correct, the outlook for the aspirin industry should be continuously rosy.

Occasionally it is complained abroad that America is the best fed nation in the world. Well, the milk cow nation should get plenty of fodder.

Clothing, automobiles, bread, etc., etc., are to cost more. There's nothing like an OPA to hold the price line.

A nickel is again a nickel, a penny again copper, but a dollar is still only paper.

No. 24 THREE DISTURBING AMENDMENTS

The next three Amendments are probably known as the Reconstruction Amendments, inasmuch as they followed the Civil War and were adopted by the Republicans, who were bent on imposing their own policies of reconstruction on the South. It was very unfortunate that Andrew Johnson was the President in office following the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, for it was under Andrew Johnson that the Carpet Baggers did their mischief and created by their actions, and the fact that the Republicans were responsible for the Amendments, a fact South and the votes of which States the Democratic Party has counted before election. The South has never been broken except at the time Al Smith was the Democratic candidate for President and that was on a purely religious question.

ARTICLE XIII
Neither slavery or involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

ARTICLE XIV
1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of Electors for President and Vice President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the executive and judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or Elector for President and Vice President, or hold any office civil or military, under the United States, or any State, who, having previously taken an oath, as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the State, or as a member of any State Legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in rebellion, or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may, by vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for the payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing rebellion or rebellion, shall not be questioned. 5. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

ARTICLE XV
1. The right of the citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

CALORIES

Somewhat the problem of calories seems to be very difficult for a good many people.

A high school boy asked if calories hurt you if you ate them. Calorie is a word to mean the measuring of the nourishment value of food.

When we measure or weigh coal we speak of pounds or tons.

When we measure electricity we speak of watts. When we measure temperature we speak of degrees.

Th calorie is the unit of measuring food.

The average person needs about 2500 calories a day.

Usually these estimates are only approximate. They are not very exact.

An egg is figured at 100 calories and the same for a slice of bread, a glass of milk or a potato. Eggs and potatoes vary in size too.

A half ounce of butter provides about 100 calories.

One eight pound of beef steak figures about 100 calories. Most people get along pretty well without knowing much about calories.

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

(Distributed by International News Service)

There is no recent word from the men who were bouncing radio beams off the moon... I hear all their signals were returned marked "opened by mistake."

The army kept messaging "this is earth calling moon..." in this earth calling moon... over! The moon replied "you were over before you started."

A Chicago scientist says rocket trips to the moon may be possible within 10 years... About the same wait as for delivery of a new car.

You may laugh at a thought of a trip to the moon but in 10 years it might look attractive... It all depends on what they do at Paris.

One scientist says there is no oxygen on the moon... That will never frighten away a N. Y. subway rider.

It also is reported that there is no meat there... We've all been conditioned for that.

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

I can think of no nicer complicity than the one paid me by three different parts of the country recently, when they wrote me that they considered me "one of the family," and that reading my column was like having a dinner-table chat with one of their own.

One of the letters came from Texas, one from California and one from Pennsylvania, which proves that folks are pretty much the same all over the country.

And, since I got some very nice letters from Mexico and Cuba and even from Scotland in all of which countries my column appears, it seems to me that folks are pretty much alike not only all over the country but all over the world.

As long as I am considered "one of the family," I wish you people would write me letters telling me a stinker or a dirty so-and-so when you don't agree with me.

You don't call your brother or your father or your cousin that. It isn't good manners and it isn't clever.

Anybody can be nasty. I wish you'd be at least nasty-nice. I don't want to be a malicious tempter from Olympus who sits on his throne and tells you what you should think and how you should live.

All I want to do is to talk things over with you and to tell you how I look at life.

I don't want you to agree with me all the time. That would be plain dumb and very monotonous.

There isn't anything quite so stimulating as a good argument. That's why they have the Democratic and Republican parties in this country.

The only difference between the two seems to be that the party that's out wants to be in and the party that's in wants to stay in and tries to prove it should.

Human nature isn't Democratic or Republican.

Surely this weather... that we are bound to call summer will soon end and some real honest-to-goodness sun and warmth will make the days more pleasant for those who are vacationing. Out over the country side, right here in Lawrence County there are hundreds of families living in cottages and some even in tents... To them that is their vacation... they chose to live along the streams of Lawrence County to that of traveling great distances. Too many folks don't realize that beauty lives right at our door step... and that out in California the talk at teas and stronger than tea parties discusses the wonders of Pennsylvania and especially Lawrence County.

Are you proud of your community... sure you are but there are times when you hesitate to talk about your community in strange surroundings. That shouldn't happen even to a dog... there should be very little that you couldn't be proud of... and many of the things that you are not proud of in this community you could correct if you but took the time to do something about it. Some say the smoke it too much... everything gets dirty. OK, there is something you can do about that situation... Either install smokeless equipment or learn how to fire your present heating equipment.

The other day we said that our heater smoked too much and we the neighbors didn't like it... and we didn't like the way the neighbors fired either... and that our only solution would be to install new smokeless heat... either coal, gas or oil. We were then informed by several who had entered into the conversation that for ten cents a booklet could be secured from the government telling how to properly fire a coal furnace so that no dirt and unnecessary smoke filled the air. These experts... and really they were experts, they sold heating equipment of all types... estimated that ninety percent of the home owners who use coal heat didn't know how to properly stoke their heater. Yes we heard you... you tell us that maybe some of the industry and institutions should purchase the book and study up on the subject before this coming winter... Amen brothers and sisters, amen.

I suppose our most prominent traveler will be the first rocket passenger... If she can make it we can make it.

The Parent Problem

By GARY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

HOW TO TRAIN CHILD IN DISOBEDIENCE

"Don't do that," says the mother to four-year-old Jimmy. Jimmy continues to scratch the bark on the tree with a stick.

"Don't do that," the mother repeats a little louder. Jimmy goes on scratching.

"Don't do that," she shouts the mother, still louder and faster, as she starts to pull the lad away. Jimmy escapes. He is annoyed, so is his mother. This tot has had good training in disobedience.

Heard Mother
Now, Jimmy heard his mother in the first instance. Why did he not obey? Because his mother did not really mean "Don't" when she said it. "No" or "Don't" to Jimmy had never been connected closely and certainly with pain. Jimmy was sure in this case that his mother would not spank him but would just pull him away from the tree and add a few sharp words of rebuke.

What should this mother have done? She should have given the forbidden just once. Then if he did not stop immediately, she should have seized him suddenly, turned him over her knee and given him a sound spanking.

Apparently, this mother was thinking only of keeping Jimmy from injuring the tree. She was not concerned primarily with training him to obey. When you say "No" or "Don't" to a young child, repeat it not for the child away from what he is forbidden to do, give him instant pain.

Follows Simple Rule
If you follow this simple rule, being careful to say either word rarely and wisely, it will, when uttered, bring desired obedience. Besides, the child will have learned quickly to avoid the few forbidden things permanently.

Notice that this mother said "Don't" a little louder on each repetition. She had grown more angry at the young boy's disobedience and at her own inefficiency. To the child, her voice had become painful but not painful enough to stop him.

The wise parents rarely say "No" or "Don't" but having said it once, does not repeat it. She did not begin to use such words until ready to control him with pain. Then she so disciplined herself that she used them not too often nor without making them a synonym of pain.

My special bullet: How to Teach Tot Meaning of "No" may be had without cost to you by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, New York, N. Y., enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

A second stamped envelope will also secure you the bulletin "Stupid business" which should be read in order to make the "No" more effective. Together they are guides in teaching both restraint and cooperation—obedience.

OUR ECONOMIC FUTURE
By the death of the OPA the United States almost alone among the nations which emerged victoriously from the war faces the problems of industrial reconversion with little or no government controls.

From V-J Day the public became impatient with war-born government restrictions, and the developments in Washington have suddenly granted the wish of some industrialists, for the time being at least, that free enterprise be given full opportunity to show what it could do.

Not all business men wanted an end to OPA, and there are indications that some of those who did want it believed it would have been better to have tapered off OPA's authority than to have suddenly ended it. Senator Taft appears to share this view.

If congress and the president are unable to agree on a workable OPA bill, business and labor will be called upon to show unusual restraint to ward off inflationary price rises. Not all increases in prices will be unjustified. Government subsidies by the millions have been given to meat packers and to dairy interests to hold down charges to consumers. If these are now ended the taxpayer will gain what the consumer is forced to pay in higher prices.

The suspension of government subsidy payments suggests a further step. Because the federal budget is not balanced the government is still pumping credit into the monetary system. With no OPA a balanced budget becomes more necessary than ever to half inflationary trends.

White House Wedding May Occur Soon Margaret Truman May Wed Ex-Navy Man Groom Lives Just Across The Street

(Central Press Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—White House wedding! Whispers that Margaret Truman will announce her engagement to be married, when she returns from Independence, have spread around town like cell-phone fire! For once the story did not start over coffee cups, quickly skinned through the cabinet and end up at the White House. . . . This wedding talk started at the White House, and it was in two shakes of a Democratic donkey's tail!

Marvin Coles, luckiest young man in the country, if it's true he is to be Margaret's bridegroom, has known her for several years, danced, chatted, joked with her, taken her out more than any other beau, and is well-liked by her parents!

This young man, whose name Capital Cupids have been festooning with orange blossoms, left the navy this year and walked into one of the government's top legal jobs—general counsel for the merchant marine committee of the House of Representatives.

He's Young Attorney
And no one thought to criticize or question that "pull" landed him the job, because Marvin is such a dynamic and brilliant young attorney.

To those who shake their heads and say: "We doubt it!" . . . "Margaret's too interested in her musical career!" . . . "Too young and too curious about the world to be thinking of marriage!" . . . Margaret's secret heart has belonged for years to a young man who shares with her in the choir at Independence!

To those skeptics any old-times who remember other White House weddings say: "Don't be so sure!" When Eleanor Wilson, the 14th White House bride, was again engaged to Senator McAdoo, Doubting Thomases pooh-poohed the idea.

Eleanor's only 22 and she'll never marry a man who's 50 years old!" At the peak of the pooh-poohing, Miss Wilson announced her engagement, and Eleanor was married shortly after, in the Blue Room.

Off and when his wedding day comes, off tall, slim Marvin will have far to walk. He lives right across the street from the White House, in one of Washington's most historic and handsome homes, owned by Mrs. Benjamin Buckingham. The mansion and its other have been a Washington mystery for nearly half a century.

Mrs. Buckingham is 60 years old herself. Mrs. Benjamin Buckingham, who made rooms available to some personable young navy officers as her contribution to the war effort, has hardly gone out of her house for the last 30 years. She remembers Abraham Lincoln's funeral, and the first time she ever went to the White House was a escorted across the street by President Grant's son.

Her house was at one time lived in by the British minister and poet, who, under the pseudonym of Owen Meredith, wrote "Lancelotti" in the mansion's garden.

After the first world war, the Veterans Administration bought property surrounding Mrs. Buckingham's home. Soon she received a letter from them, asking if she would consider selling part of her garden to the United States government, and if so what would be her price?

Mrs. Buckingham replied that she was delighted to hear from the United States government—in fact, she was on the verge of addressing a letter to them herself. As her small terrace needed more garden space she wondered if the United States government would sell their property to her, and what would their price be?

Weddings may be in the wind, but other storms are brewing! Jessie Kauffman Hoskinson, daughter of the local newscaster, is RENOUNCING her wedding vows to Lt. Comdr. J. Henry Hoskinson. . . . Beautiful blond Jessie's smart set friends have known for some time she and Henry were having sparks, and that fire might break out at any moment. Well, it's broken! Jessie should be back from Reno in the next few weeks, free, blond and very eligible!

Answer: Being cool and relaxing is generally used for porch furniture. But if a bright color is needed, you may use red.

Chintz cushions for the seats with matching back cushions will afford comfort, as well as an attractive appearance. A coat of fresh paint every year will keep your furniture looking new and at the same time preserve the wood.

Question: Please tell me if Venetian blinds are appropriate for a colonial bungalow.

Answer: Venetian blinds may be used in any type of house and any kind of interior decoration. These are the best shades you can procure since they shut out as much light as you desire and allow air to come in at the same time. Make sure that they fit properly; otherwise, you will be annoyed with their rattling every time there is a breeze.

Question: Is it true that an informal wedding invitation, if written in ink, should be addressed to the wife only? I have heard this and wondered if it is so.

Answer: An informal wedding invitation should be addressed to the wife, but in the body of the letter the husband should be mentioned, thus: "We would like you and Mr. Jones to come to the church and the reception immediately after the ceremony."

The wife of course is sent by both Mr. and Mrs. Jones.

Present your problems to Miss Market who will promptly mail personal replies to questions from readers enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelopes.

GRIST FOR THE TREASURY
The treasury's annual list of big salaries always makes good reading. People who never in a lifetime lay hands on such sums are interested in reading about the $1,113,035 income of Movie Director McCarey and the $201,458 of singing-dancing Carmen Miranda, with in-between payments to movie magnate, race-tracks kings, actors and assorted industrial executives.

But the greatest pleasure in learning of such incomes should come to the Treasury itself, and to all who depend upon the government for livelihood. For from such incomes come large chunks of what it takes to keep the government going on the generous scale that has become its pattern.

The salaries and bonuses lately publicized were on 1944 incomes. Under the 1944 tax law, a million-dollar net income violated the government about $800,000 in taxes; half-million income, $442,985 in tax; $300,000 income, $254,985 tax; $100,000 income, $68,563 tax. On all such astronomical incomes, Uncle Sam's take-home represents the larger share.

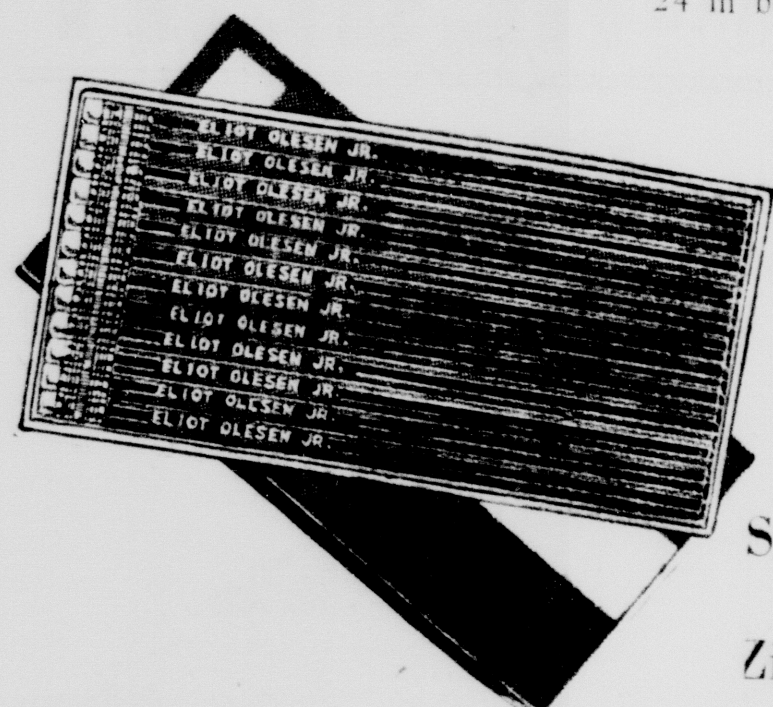

That, we may say, is as it should be. But let's not forget that it is, and the more people that make more money the more the government will have to pay its bills—Washington, D. C., News.

Budget balance, of course, would be made impossible if the various spending schemes involving in various instances an expansion of Federal governmental functions are to have congressional sanction. The new secretary will need not only cooperation in congress, he will have to have active administration resistance to the various spending requests if his program for immediate balance of the budget is not to remain merely a pious aspiration.

Scandal Hinted In Job Training

Attorney General Clark To Investigate Gen. Bradley's
Warning

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Attorney General Tom Clark today ordered the criminal division of the department of justice to investigate Gen. Omar Bradley's warning of a "national scandal" in the veterans' on-the-job training program.

Bradley in a speech before the United Spanish War Veterans at Milwaukee last night declared the scandal involved "millions in federal funds."

The general head of the Veterans' administration, asserted that numerous reports of irregularities had reached his office and declared he would recommend "to congress changes to tighten controls."

Clark instructed James Ruffin, chief of the criminal division, to confer immediately with Veterans' administration officials and to take whatever action is necessary.

Prosecution Possible

The justice department indicated that prosecutions will be swiftly brought about if Ruffin's inquiry yields evidence warranting such action.

Bradley in his address to the Spanish war veterans said that both employers and veterans were resorting to "trick practices." He cited a number of unscrupulous practices and said they could be blamed on split federal-state responsibility under the education provisions of the GI Bill of Rights.

Under the bill state boards certify qualifications of establishments to give on-the-job training to veterans and the Veterans' administration pays subsistence allowances at the rate of $65 a month to single veterans and $90 to those with dependents.

MAN HELD ON

BIGAMY CHARGE

MEADVILLE, Pa., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Emerson T. Campbell, 31, of Titusville was being held in the Crawford county jail today for Reading police who sought him on an alleged charge of bigamy.

Will Establish Warning Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—The war department revealed plans Tuesday for establishment of a hurricane warning service to further the peacetime army's battle against the elements.

The joint chiefs of staff were disclosed to have approved "a comprehensive plan for the preparation and dissemination of hurricane warnings to interested agencies, both civil and military, in the United States and adjacent areas."

Hurricane warning centers will be operated by the army navy and weather bureau at Miami, Fla. New York City and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

This action heightens a broad program already undertaken by the army to provide protection against storms.

Plans have been announced by the army air forces for a network of 35 storm detection radar stations capable of spotting thunderstorms within 200 miles and making it possible to forecast accurately when they will arrive at any particular point.

The AAF also has secured an agreement with Mexico to operate three Mexican airfields in an effort to provide earlier hurricane warnings and better protection for people living in the southern and southeastern United States.

Much emphasis is being placed on all-weather flying and safe paths through thunderstorms have been the objective of a series of AAF tests.

ty-three per cent of the servicemen discharged at Fort Dix separation center last month plan to return to work, a survey reveals. Twenty-four per cent want to further their education and three per cent elected to work part-time while attending school or college.

JAIL HONEYMOON
VANCOUVER, Wash.—(INS)—Walter Browning, 28-year-old soldier from Coos Bay, spent his "honeymoon" in jail. They let him out a few minutes while Judge Charles W. Hall officiated at his wedding to 21-year-old Phyllis LaSavage. Then the bridegroom was whisked back to jail to await trial on a car theft charge.

Western Pennsylvania restaurants which increased their prices when the OPA "ended" temporarily now must "roll back" their prices to the nounced in Pittsburgh.Restaurants may raise prices on meat, milk, cheese, butter, eggs, no longer are affected by price controls, the OPA ruled, but the increases will be limited to specific nomination after Governor

ner by less than 1,000 votes over Congressman Sherman Adams.An almost complete tabulation of mately 23,000 to 22,000 for Adams.

Local War Bride To Join Husband In Great Britain

One of England's American war brides, the former Miss Elizabeth Lewis, now Mrs. Leslie F. Ditchfield, of 405 Waldo street, is planning to return to the scene of her romance in England and Wales and to her husband, Leslie F. Ditchfield, who is at present a member of the British Merchant Marine.

If present plans work out, Mrs. Ditchfield plans to leave this city on August 16 she hopes to be able to board the Cunard Lines ship, the Queen Mary, which will be sailing for English waters on that day, to return her to the scene of her romance and courtship.

Mrs. Ditchfield, who for the past three years has been studying at Houghton College, Houghton, N. Y., for her B.A. degree and at the same time serving as assistant to the dean of women, was recently cited in "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges" for her outstanding work. She graduated with the June class of the school, this year, returning to her home here upon graduation.

It seems as though the romance of the young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ditchfield which began just a few short years ago in Swansea Bible college, Swansea, Wales, really began right here in the city of New Castle, just about the time World War I was beginning over there.

Romance Intriguing
The story runs thus: Mrs. Ditchfield's father, the late Evan Lewis, and Ross Howells were working side by side in the old Shenango Tin Mill. Both men had deep religious convictions. While Mr. Lewis stayed here to raise his family, Mr. Howells returned to Wales to become founder of the Bible college there, which has been thriving since that time.

After her graduation from New Castle High school in the class of 1934, and entering upon some religious enterprises throughout the country, the then Miss Lewis and her father sailed for England where Elizabeth entered the Bible college of Wales, meeting her husband-to-be, Leslie F. Ditchfield, who was a student at the school. Following graduation, the romance reads like several chapters out of a book, with events to happen far beyond the imagination of any writer of fiction.

Mrs. Ditchfield returned to her home here, while her husband proceeded on to Paris, where he entered a university for the language study, while also doing refugee work at the Wakefield Mission in Paris.

Mr. Ditchfield Held By Nazis
It was here the thrilling part of the romance began. German hordes invaded France, sweeping away what little opposition they had, and as England was at war with Germany, as a new ally of France, Mr. Ditchfield was detained by the Nazi police in Paris as a prisoner of war. Since he was British, he was removed to an internment camp where he found natives from all the British dominions.

After spending many months within the limits of the concentration camp, Mr. Ditchfield, along with two companions made good their escape by cutting through a barbed wire retaining fence, crawling over more barbed wire rolls, and sealing a wall 14 feet high, only to drop into a cage-like structure whose walls were 14 feet high and the roof of which consisted of a basket weave of barbed wire. After persistent cutting, the men found their way through the barrier and were out in the open.

Precarious Escape

With forged passports, identification papers, honorable discharges from the French Army, they proceeded to the border line of free France where they eventually returned to England. It was in August of 1943 he joined the Merchant Marine of England, hoping to get a trip to the United States and to his sweetheart. The first long trip his boat made after that was to the States, where he docked for three weeks, hurriedly coming to this city, where the romance was consummated in June of 1944 at the Primitive Methodist church of this city. One of the escapees with Mr. Ditchfield, Georges Savaria of Montreal, Canada, was best man at the wedding.

As Mrs. Ditchfield leaves the city in a few days, she goes with the understanding that she must stay in England at least two years, before she can return to the States with her husband, due to the long waiting list of those desiring passage to the United States. In the meantime, the couple will take up residence with Mr. Ditchfield's parents in Liverpool, England.

St. Vitus Sodality Wiener Roast Held

Committee Honors Sodality Members Who Are Leaving City In Near Future

Publicity committee members of the Sodality of Our Lady of St. Vitus church held a wiener roast at the home of one of its members, Celestina Scungio, 513 Laurel boulevard, recently with approximately 25 Sodality members.

The officers of the Sodality were guests of the committee. Special guests for the evening were Margaret Naples, Dora Naples and Josephine DeMase, who will be leaving soon. Margaret Naples will enter the religious order of the Missionary Zelatrices of the Sacred Heart in September; Dora Naples will begin her junior year at Slippery Rock State Teachers college; and Josephine DeMase will leave this month with her family to take up residence in California. Also a special guest was the Sodality director, Rev. Fr. Albert M. Inteso. Various games and singing were enjoyed by the group throughout the evening. In charge of arrangements and responsible for this successful Sodality affair were Julie Terranova, Edith Sgarrelli, Mary Jane Novello, Mary Jane Litrenta, Marjorie Scungio and Celestina Scungio.

DIDN'T GET AWAY

RENOVO—(INS)—Vern A. Van Oder hooked a muskunge in the Tionesta dam weighing 20 pounds and measuring 40 inches in length.

The origin of the word "vaudeville" is traced back to a little French village in Normandy, named Vaudeville or Vaude-vire, where a poet by the name of Oliver Bassel, of Brasselin in the fifteenth century composed convivial songs which became popular and were sung by the common people and introduced into plays and entertainments.

Commuter Uses 'Dagwood' Act

NEW HOPE, Pa., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Commuters who use the Reading company line today described a "reverse strip-tease" by a middle-aged "Dagwood."

They said the man arrived in an automobile at the New Hope station just two minutes before the early train.

The man was clad in underwear, gartered socks and shoes. The rest of his clothing was in the car.

As the other commuters watched, the late sleeper pulled on his trousers; then his shirt and tie and grabbed his coat just as the train pulled into the platform.

No one seems to have caught "Dagwood's" name.

Martin Praises Poland's History

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Gov. Edward Martin has pointed out that "no lover of liberty can fail to be thrilled by the long story of Poland's undying struggle for freedom."

Addressing an assembly of Polish citizens in Keimwood park in Pittsburgh last night, Governor Martin emphasized that "no American can fail to be conscious of our country's debt to men of Polish blood who have given their lives for our freedom."

"The end of hostilities brought new hope for freedom and the right of the Polish people to determine their own destiny," the governor said. "The people of Poland have been denied this right."

"They now appeal to the conscience of the world," he declared. "Poland will not be free until this appeal is heard and granted."

Busy Pathway!

Every time you talk to a friend on the telephone, your message travels into the central office . . . through the switchboard there . . . and out to your friend's telephone.

Because all calls pass through that switchboard, it's a mighty busy place. These days it's busier than ever, for in order to provide service sooner to the many people waiting for telephones, we've stretched our switchboard facilities.

Sometimes we just can't handle all the calls without occasional delays. This is particularly true at the peak hours . . . late in the morning and early in the evening.

So, if the operator doesn't answer immediately when you lift the receiver, we hope you'll understand. This situation is temporary. New facilities are on order. Soon your telephone service will be better than ever. Thanks for cooperating!

Polish Vice-Premier Claims Election Fraud

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of five articles describing the dangerous internal conditions in Poland as a result of the referendum and the recent increase in anti-Semitism. The first article presented the government point of view as outlined by Premier Osobka-Morawski. Here with follows Vice-Premier Mikolajczyk's case.

By JAMES E. BROWN
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

WARSAW, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Vice-Premier Mikolajczyk today believes he was betrayed and deceived by the Communist-dominated government in the recent Polish referendum.

He is bitter and disillusioned about the manner in which it was conducted, and he has not yet decided whether he will take part in the November elections.

He told International News Service during the course of three interviews, one before the referendum, one after the results were announced, and one following the Kielce pogrom.

I asked him bluntly whether he feared civil war. He replied:

Claim Many Members

"The opposition claims there are many members of the N. S. Z. (unpermitted armed forces) among my supporters. This is refuted by the government themselves on their referendum figures.

"They have announced that of the 13,160,451 people legally entitled to vote 11,857,986 did in fact go to the polls—that is, 90 per cent, a high figure in any democracy. In other words, the Polish people wanted to change the government by legal methods, not those of warfare and terrorism.

"But I cannot say how long they will prefer legal methods after the brutally fraudulent manner in which the referendum was carried out.

"I know—and people throughout Poland know—that my party (the Polish peasant party) received an 85 per cent victory on the first question opposing a single-chamber government. We were represented on only three of the 17 major voting districts. The government did the counting, and they decided to give up only 32 per cent of the votes."

I asked the former prime minister of the Polish government-in-exile in London whether he regretted having returned to Poland.

Place Is Here

"No," he said shortly, "my place is here—whatever happens."

Asked concerning the November elections, he said:

"The answer is difficult. Our participation will depend on several conditions. Firstly, we must be allowed to have representatives at the voting districts and at the counting of the ballots.

"Secondly, candidates for election must have immunity from arrest, and the secret police must cease terrorizing and intimidating election officials.

"Thirdly, the government must allow us fair access to means of propaganda such as posters and use of the radio."

The vice premier said:

"Without these safeguards the election would be a farce, and our participation would merely sanction illegality."

I then asked him concerning the government's accusation that many members of his party are anti-Semitic, and that his newspapers, "Gazeta Ludowa," refused to print a condemnation of the Kielce pogrom until a day after all the other Warsaw newspapers had done so.

He answered:

Reputation At Stake

"It simply is not true. The government is trying to damage my reputation by accusing me of anti-Semitism. Here are the facts: I issued a statement condemning the Kielce pogrom, but the government censor would not allow it to be published until statements had been issued by all the other members of the government. It was a clumsy attempt to discredit me."

I asked the government press chief, General Viktor Grosz, concerning this. He confirmed that Mikolajczyk had issued a statement, but said it had been suppressed because it contained irrelevances critical of the government.

My personal impression of Mikolajczyk is that he is an impressively sincere but not brilliant man. Foreign observers who have been in Warsaw since the liberation assert that he would be eminently qualified to lead the peasant party in a western-version of a democratic regime. But, they say, he has unwillingly become much more than that with practically all non-leftist elements surviving in the country rallying around him as the only legal opposition.

Fire Bureaucrats Gov. Martin Urges

MEADVILLE, Pa., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Gov. Edward Martin today called for bureaucratic house cleaning in Washington.

"The accumulation of 14 years of hypocrisy must be swept out of Washington," he declared. "The only way to do this is by a change in political control."

THANK YOU

for waiting for delivery of your
NEW CHEVROLET

We are doing our best to see that you get your new car as quickly as possible

We want to thank every one of our customers in this community—and every prospective customer as well—for the friendly patience with which you are awaiting your new Chevrolet.

That patience will be more than rewarded when we hand you the keys to your Chevrolet, for here, in our judgment, is the first and only automobile to bring you Big-Car quality at lowest cost.

We know how difficult it is to wait even a day for a car of such exceptionally fine quality; but we believe you will understand that we, and the Chevrolet Motor Division, are as eager to deliver cars as purchasers are to obtain them. Unfortunately, the cars produced so far this year are far fewer than we and the factory had counted on. Chevrolet headquarters at Detroit sums up the situation thus:

"Even though our rate of production normally exceeds that of any other manufacturer, we have been able to build, up to July 1, only 12.4 per cent as many cars as we had built up to that date in 1941. Production is still far below normal, because of frequent shortages of essential materials and parts. Strike after strike at the plants of our suppliers has seriously impeded our progress toward full production, and the cumulative effect severely hampers every manufacturing and assembly plant. In June we were able to build only 29.2 per cent as many cars as we produced in the same month in 1941."

While production is restricted, so—in proportion—are shipments of cars to us. As production increases, we are assured of getting our proportionate share of the total number of cars from the factory. But we want you to know that as quickly as these cars are received we will speed deliveries to our customers.

We thank you, again, for your understanding and patience—confident that when your turn comes to enjoy the Big-Car quality of the new Chevrolet, you will be thankful that you waited.

One Quake After Another Jars Dorothy Kilgallen

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN
(Copyright, 1946, by N. Y. Journal-American)
(Distributed by International News Service)
CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Now I've seen my first earthquake—"felt" is a more accurate word, I suppose—and I must say the sensation is everything grandma claimed it was when she talked about San Francisco in 1906.

I was sitting quietly in the beautiful tropical white and yellow bar of the Hotel Jaragua overlooking a tiled patio at 1:49 p. m. Sunday when the first quake came.

After Celebration
We had just come from the celebration of the 450th anniversary of the founding of the City of Santo Domingo, and a brief reception at the Presidential Palace—my husband, Richard Kolmar Paul Du Pont, of New York, who had staged the colorful pageant at the water-front and Roger Wolin of the Pan American Airways.

The four of us were relaxing at a table, sipping tall drinks. It had been a hot morning; we had walked miles in the sun following the procession from the ancient Cathedral of Santo Domingo to the Alcazar, where mass had been said by Archbishop Pettini, and all we wanted was the breeze from the Caribbean and something liquid with ice in it.

Nature, however, gave us considerably more. As we talked, I felt a movement underneath me as if some wag had rung the rungs of my chair and was shaking it. Only I wasn't sitting on a chair, I was sitting on a leather banquet.

Then the movement increased, and it was like being on a ship in a rough sea, or in an airplane in stormy weather.

For about 10 seconds during which everyone was immobile and faces were puzzled looks, I thought "If I didn't know better I'd think this was an earthquake."

Like a Subway
Dick says his first reaction was that a subway was rumbling beneath us. When he realized that was ridiculous he knew it had to be an earthquake.

We all got to our feet and rushed toward the outdoor patio under the blue sky. By this time others were running from the terraces of the hotel and from the rooms and from the halls.

Roger Wolin, who has spent considerable time in tropical countries, grabbed my arm and pulled me back under the open archway separating the bar from the patio.
"It's an earthquake, all right," he said unnecessarily. "The best place to stand is in a strong doorway."

We could hear the small frightened squeals of the native waiters and chambermaids as the scurried out of the hotel like mice.

About five seconds under the archway, I decided I would rather take my chances out in the open with Dick and the others. Roger went with me.

The ground under our feet was undulating so wildly we could see it move in waves and to keep balance we had to stand with our feet wide apart as you do on a pitching ship. I kept waiting for the earth to open up in a great crack in front of us.

A long crack did appear in a white balcony over our heads. The chandelier in the bar was swinging like the chandelier in "The Phantom of the Opera".

Distant Rumble
I swear I heard a distant rumble as of thunder. Dick said he heard a rumble during a subsequent tremor. The others said they were too scared to know whether they heard anything or not.

The quake lasted a minute, or a little longer. Naturally no one in our group had a stopwatch on it.

We ran across the road beside the hotel and stood under a palm tree. There was another huddle of guests three trees away. When the tremor subsided we looked at each other and discovered to our amusement that everyone had carried his glass with him.

A newsreel photographer, Coburn Gilman, had been in a state of dishabille when the quake came to him on the third floor; he appeared on the front lawn in the bottom half of a pair of spectacularly striped pajamas and what seemed to be bobby sox. The sight of him caused a roar of laughter and the tension broke.

We waited under a tree for 35 minutes having experienced just one more tremor, very slight compared to the first. Everybody went back into the hotel, and we actually ate lunch. Later Dick and I decided to take a nap.

I was just dozing off when big quake number two began to swing me gently, as if I were a baby in a cradle, it was rather pleasant except that I suddenly realized it was another tremor, and we were on the top floor.

I called to Dick. This time I was frightened and I was beginning not to like earthquakes. I said:

Here's Another One
"Here's another one, let's get out of here."

I put a dressing gown over my nightgown, but didn't stop for slippers. We pattered down four flights of stairs and out to the swimming pool in our bare feet. By this time the quaking had stopped and I felt more than a little foolish.

Altogether I counted six quakes of Sunday and early Sunday evening. We left a call for 8:30 Monday morning but it was unnecessary; at 8:20 a. m. I was awakened by that same gentle rocking and the realization that the bedside lamp was about to fall on my head.

Dick's voice floated over.

"Do you feel it?"

I said yes. But I waited, I didn't even get out of bed. I didn't feel it but I wasn't scared. I felt like waiting it out to see if it was going to be big enough to scare me down stairs. It didn't.

We explored the town early in the morning. There was not much damage that we could find in Ciudad Trujillo; a few balconies had fallen off. A few old churches had caved in in spots, and we found several big cracks and some fallen plaster in the front wall of the magnificent old cathedral.

We heard that the damage had been bad in Moco and Santiago and worse in San Francisco de Macoris.

One native Dominican told me there was not a single person alive in San Francisco de Macoris, but I could not understand his Spanish well enough to discover where he got that information. Later in the day we heard about the tidal wave in the north.

NOVEL WAY TO MOVE PRISONERS

BEVERLY, N. J., Aug. 7.—(INS)—Sgt. Charles Caldarella came up with something new today in the way of transporting prisoners.

Handcuffed to a jailbird, Caldarella stood out on a highway with his right thumb raised in the authentic hitchhiking gesture.

When a startled motorist halted, the sergeant explained that he was taking the man to nearby Burlington to be locked up.

Caldarella said the locks on the jail cells at Beverly are in bad shape. He added that he had to take all prisoners to Burlington by the thumb method because he has no police car.

Atomic Rubble Hides Bodies In Hiroshima

EDITOR'S NOTE:—One year ago today, the world learned for the first time of the development of the atomic bomb—and its first use against Hiroshima, Japan.

What is that blasted Japanese city like today? To find out, International News Service sent correspondent Harold Bickow to Hiroshima. The following is his report.

By HAROLD BICKOW
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HIROSHIMA, Aug. 7.—The bodies of between 6,000 and 10,000 Japanese, killed by the first atomic bomb used in warfare, still lie beneath the pulverized wreckage of Hiroshima. Only a month ago a clean-up campaign in one corner of the city uncovered more than 1,000 bodies.

The bodies are not a health problem, however, as they are buried under tons of ruined concrete. Hiroshima has no odor of death.

Meanwhile, life is stirring in the vast graveyard. Thousands of wooden shacks now dot the center of the devastated area, breaking the flat, dead appearance of the city in the days following the explosion.

Proceeds Slowly

But Hiroshima's reconstruction is proceeding slowly. The Japanese planning the city's reconstruction say it will take five years to clear away the wreckage and widen the streets so that a new and modern Hiroshima can be built on the ashes of the old. The new city will be scientifically planned and will have a monument dedicated to unity among nations erected on the spot over which the atom bomb exploded.

The site is marked by the twisted steel and broken concrete remains of Hiroshima's industrial buildings. Beneath the ruined skeleton of the dome, Japanese have planted a small vegetable garden and weeds now cover most of the direct-blast area.

Through the past year the city government has had its hands full providing partial relief for the atom bomb sufferers. Fifteen thousand pre-fabricated wooden shacks were made by the city and distributed to homeless residents for the cost of labor, about 3,500 yen ($240) in the present inflation.

The wood was supplied by the Japanese government from military stockpiles free of charge.

Bonus To Victims

The city paid a bonus of 1,000

yen to each atom victim, who also received regular insurance benefits from government-subsidized companies.

There still are some atom victims in Hiroshima hospital, but most of them are undergoing plastic surgery or are still mending broken bones. A few non-resident patients still complain of weakness, which they attribute to the explosion.

Few persons with heavy burn scars are left in the city. Most of the seriously burned died of radiation effects and many of the others were either patched up by plastic surgery or left town.

Alongside the wood shanties, squash, tomatoes and cucumbers are growing in small gardens scraped from the debris. Most of the gardens were started some months ago when the city distributed free seedlings to the populace. Contrary to early fears, the fertility of the soil was not destroyed.

Hiroshima's electric system has been repaired. On the outskirts of town three big factories are producing at one third to one tenth their former capacity. Now wires carry electricity to many of the shanties.

One Sheet Newspaper

A worn-out printing press prints a daily one sheet newspaper, and many schools and churches have been set up in makeshift quarters.

Traffic moves along at a snail's pace. A few shabby street cars, stripped of seats and bulging with passengers, clatter along the ruined streets. Occasionally a rickety, overloaded bus, a sputtering three-wheeled motorcycle, or a dilapidated truck rattles by with smoke pouring from its charcoal-burning engine.

Most of Hiroshima's traffic is pedestrian. Unlike most Japanese cities, bicycles are not common. The people are pre-occupied with the daily search for food, although the city, sitting in the heart of an agricultural district is generally better fed than Tokyo or Yokohama.

An escapist atmosphere prevails, and as a result, the most developed phase of reconstruction is amusement.

Hiroshimans walk past blackened, broken skeletons of dead trees to seventeen movie theaters—more than the city supported before the explosion. Last week thousands crammed the city's largest theater, located in a partially reconstructed concrete building framework, to see "Casablanca" and "Babe On Broadway."

U.S. Gives Hungary Two Million Dollars

Money Had Been Looted From Hungary By Germany; Will Stabilize Currency

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—The United States on Tuesday turned over to Hungary 32 million dollars in monetary gold in the sharp diplomatic battle with the Soviet Union for favor of the strategic Balkan state.

The gold was shipped from Frankfurt, Germany, by a special heavily guarded train to Budapest Monday. It was looted from Hungary by Germany and carried into German and Austrian zones. There it was recaptured through the lightning-like thrusts of Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army.

An agreement for the return of the gold was entered into several weeks ago when Hungarian Prime Minister Ferenc Nagy visited Washington. At that time the pengo—Hungary's recognized currency unit—was soaring to astronomical heights.

Stabilize Currency

It was anticipated that the gold would be used to stabilize the currency. A move in this direction was made recently when the Budapest government announced a new unit, the "forint," which had a recognized gold value.

However, these dry economic and financial questions were regarded as but a minor factor in the bitter diplomatic battle raging between the U. S. and Moscow over Hungary.

Hungary was the first, and thus far the only, Balkan state to hold what Washington considers a free election. Democratic elements favoring the western powers easily overrode the Communist elements in a campaign in which adherence to the western powers or the Soviet Union was the major issue.

Meetings Continue At No. 2 Mines

Special meetings, which are in progress at the Drake Gospel Tabernacle of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, at No. 2 Mines, with Rev. William Gamble, of this city, known as the Irish Evangelist, will continue throughout this week and next, according to announcement from the pastor, Harry Polding.

Services are being held nightly at 7.30, with the exception of Saturday evening. Friday evening, a special young peoples' program is being planned. Miss Pearl Gibbons, of this city, is pianist for the series.

Special music for the services has been arranged with Avery Rigby, the McElrath Trio, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Polding, Joseph Proctor, Nancy Mack, and others from this city participating.

Fingerprints Don't Lie But They Do Tell Tales

There may be a strong similarity in photographs but fingerprints do not lie, according to Police Captain Willis McMullen, in charge of the city's bureau of detectives. The bureau was established when John F. Haven, now mayor, was police chief. In fact, it was the present mayor who established the bureau which has played a vital role in law enforcement here.

Many Fingerprinted

Since 1932, 4,585 persons who came under police scrutiny, either as a suspect or prisoner, have been photographed and fingerprinted. A copy of their picture and "prints" were forwarded to the Federal Bureau of Identification, Washington, D. C., and state police of Pennsylvania. A copy was also kept in Captain McMullen's files here for future reference.

McMullen has photographed and fingerprinted persons accused of every crime, from murder, burglary, arson, rape to minor causes, such as disorderly conduct, fighting upon a public street and intoxication. He has also taken the fingerprints and photographs of "unknown persons" killed in accidents or who died suddenly.

Copies of "prints" of dead persons when forwarded to the FBI usually resulted in identification, providing, of course, that the person or persons, some time during their lives, either had their fingerprints taken because of some offense, or because they desired to have their identification known, should an accident beset them.

He also maintains what he refers to as "Dead Man's file." Whenever he discovers, through newspapers or other channels, that a person who has had a police record has died, he removes the record from its original file and places it in "Dead Man's file," then notifies the FBI. Otherwise the FBI would keep the "prints" on file for 99 years.

Cannot Hide Identity

"Is it possible to obliterate tell-tale ridges on fingers?"

"No. Of course, he or she may use acid or other means, to burn so deep the fingers would be useless, but in such a case, authorities would, through other 'checks,' establish identification," he replied.

"Has any person here attempted this means to hide identity?"

"No," he answered.

"Is a photograph as good a means of identification as a fingerprint?"

"No. There are too many persons similar in appearance. The old-time officer who could take a 'mental' picture was a valuable asset to any law enforcing body, but nowadays the fingerprint is the chief means of identification."

"Do you check for other identification marks?"

"You bet we do. We check his hair, color of eyes, his teeth, scars, tattoos, deformities of any member of his body, height, weight, and go so far as to ascertain his or her peculiarities. If he or she has a false plate that is put on a record. If he or she has gold, silver or porcelain fillings in his or her teeth, that, too, is marked down."

"In other words, when your bureau finishes with a suspect or a prisoner, you know more about him than he or she knows about themselves?"

The police captain smiled, then replied: "I guess that is true."

"When you classify a suspect or prisoner, do you also put on the record the nickname or alias?"

"Yes."

McMullen then displayed 20 cards, each bearing the classification of as many persons on record—known years ago as "Rogues Gallery."

Revives Reporter's Memory

The aliases revived memories of the police reporter of many acts of criminalism of which he had written stories.

The aliases or nicknames ranged from endearing names to those which implied a threat. For the reason that some of these persons have paid their debt to society, the nicknames are not published.

"Do you have any persons who go on trips?"

"Oh, yes. In fact, many businessmen who carry large amounts of money, ex-service men who have lost their honorable discharge papers and men and women starting on long journeys have their fingerprints taken. These are not kept in the criminal file. They are kept in a separate compartment and only to assure the person that in case of accident or means of checking some legitimate cause, are they kept. They may be returned upon request."

"Are police fingerprinted when they are named to the force?"

"No. All licensed police radio operators are fingerprinted because of a federal statute."

"How old is fingerprinting?"

"This is a question I cannot answer with certainty," he answered.

"There has been found on tablets in Egyptian tombs the fingerprints of those laid to rest. The Chinese a long, long time ago, also took the prints of fingers," he added, then explained that "it was not until the turn of the century that it became in vogue and it became a country-wide practice after the FBI was organized. He explained that in the FBI in Washington, one can press a button and almost instantly discover if a person who had been fingerprinted ever had been 'printed' previous.

Some Voice Objections

The police captain has two hobbies—one of which is fingerprinting and the other is fishing, but were he asked to choose between the two, no doubt, he would select fingerprinting. To him it is very interesting.

Not all "prints" taken are easily decipherable because some persons who take prints do not take them as expertly as others. However, the tell-tale ridges can always be found, even in the faintest of "prints," he explained.

"Do persons who come into your bureau for untoward acts object to having their 'prints' taken?"

"Some do. They try to twist their fingers in a manner that does not permit a good impression."

"What do you do in such cases?"

"Oh, I simply tell them that we have eight hours to work that another fingerprint man will relieve me and the only course is incarceration until they decide we are here for that purpose, and inevitably they'll be fingerprinted," McMullen also stated that in some instances persons known as "repeaters" tell him as soon as they arrive in his office, "You don't need bother. I have a record and the FBI has my prints." As soon as the FBI receives the copy, it forwards within 24 hours a complete record of the man's record.

Can Print Baby's Feet

"How about a man's toes? Can you print them?"

"Equally as well as a man's fingers," excepting that tight shoes sometimes twist the toes grotesquely and it is a more difficult task."

"How about taking the footprints of a baby? You know they do that in hospitals nowadays and mothers like to have a copy of their baby's 'prints' on a baby book?"

"We can do that, too," McMullen replied, although he explained that so far he has received no requests for this service.

However, he did sum up the interview by stating:

"Fingerprints do not lie."

NAVAL GHOST TOWN

AMES, Iowa.—(INS)—A naval ghost town—that's the Iowa State college campus today. Where once marched a peak enrollment of 3,500 electricians, Diesel men, cooks, bakers, V-12 and V-5 trainees, today there isn't a single naval trainee on the campus. All that is left of the naval complement that once numbered 4,000 is just the ship's company—a handful numbering 15.

Army Experiments In Frost Bite Test

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Army experiments to prevent loss of life in extreme cold were revealed Tuesday to involve freezing and unfreezing of guinea pigs.

These tests, announced previously, are part of the army's program for working out means of operating in the frigid Arctic regions.

It was explained that knowledge gained in the guinea pig experiments will be helpful in saving lives of persons subjected to sub-freezing temperatures.

This information was disclosed by an officer close to the project.

A spokesman for the office of the surgeon general, in charge of the program, said he had no knowledge of the tests with guinea pigs as yet.

He explained that direction was given to carry out the "frost bite" test and that means of doing so was up to project directors. He said that they were interested only in results, not methods.

Vacation Plans Vanish In Air

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Two Negro purse snatchers added insult to injury Tuesday when they robbed Miss Reba Rosenfield of 4702 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

They snatched her handbag as she walked down the West Philadelphia elevated steps.

It contained $60 and her department store coins.

But that wasn't all. Her bag also contained all her vacation plans, including an airplane ticket to Quebec—reservations at the swank Hotel Fontenay—her baggage slips—and a ticket for a steamship cruise.

And Miss Rosenfield's vacation is—or was—scheduled to begin Saturday.

HAS LAST WORD

CLARKSVILLE.—(INS)—There was no doubt who had the last word when an argument embroiled the third base umpire during a tri-county game at Clarksville. The arbitrator was Mrs. Ray Dean, wife of the Roscoe team's left fielder.

Conviction Stands For Head Master Of Warminster Academy

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Aug. 7.—(INS)—The Montgomery county court Tuesday upheld the conviction of George W. Balles, Jr., on morals charges involving students at the Warminster Military Academy near Three Rivers.

Judge Harold D. Knight, in an opinion, simultaneously granted a new trial for Balles' wife, Laura, who was convicted on five counts, and is currently free under $3,500 bail.

Balles was directed to appear in the Montgomery county house August 16 for sentence. Now at liberty in $13,000 bail, he faces a maximum prison term of 46 years, and a $19,300 fine.

Judge Knight, in his opinion, granted Defense Counsel Edward Duffy's motion for a directed verdict of not guilty on two bills charging Balles with indecent assault and corrupting public morals. A jury convicted Balles four months ago on eleven counts.

DESTROY POISON IVY WITH WEED KILLERS

Poison ivy can be eliminated by the use of chemical weed killers. This method removes the risk of poisoning to the person working around it, requires but little labor and, considering the results, is not expensive.

Among the weed killers which show the greatest promise are ammate, and those containing 2, 4D. Both of these materials are absorbed through the leaves and will kill the entire plant.

Ammate kills all kinds of plants, and is corrosive to spray equipment. It must be used in rather strong concentrations. 2, 4D does not kill grass, but kills most kinds of broad-leaved plants. It is said to be effective on poison ivy which is growing in the sun, but may not kill in the shade.

2, 4D should not be used in a sprayer which is to be used for spraying trees or other plants. It is very difficult to remove from sprayers and a very small amount may cause injury to desirable plants.

Ivy poisoning can be eliminated if chemical weed killers are used properly.

RECEIVES WORD FROM BROTHER IN EARTHQUAKE AREA

Mrs. Jack Pitzer, of 338 Park avenue, has received word from her brother and sister-in-law, Lt. and Mrs. John K. Slack who are stationed in San Juan, Puerto Rico, that they are safe and that their area was undamaged by the earthquake.

Lt. Slack lived here for a number of years before entering service. He is now with the Army Signal Corps.

Food Preservation Aids Housewives At Clinic Exhibit

Home Economic Division of the Lawrence County Agriculture Association sponsored a Food Preservation Clinic at 6 W. Washington street, Monday afternoon and evening.

Under the able direction of the Home Economic Representative, Mary Ellen McClain and Nutrition Specialist, Beatrice Spiker, the exhibit assistant housewives in questions on canning and quick freezing of foods. Miss Spiker recommended methods for canning and freezing and offered bulletins to aid the housewife.

Types of equipment for canning and freezing were exhibited and explained. Those women who had pressure cookers on which the gauge did not seem to register correctly, had them tested with hints given on how to off-set the faulty gauge.

Visitors asked questions of various types, such as: Why do peaches and pears turn dark after canning and can this be prevented in canning and freezing?

What is the best treatment for fruit and vegetables for freezing?

Is boiling water bath method safe for canning non-acid vegetables?

In answer to the last question, Miss Spiker answered that a pressure cooker is recommended. However, canning can be done successfully in a hot water bath if small quantities are canned at one time or if foods are pre-cooked before packing into jars.

When Miss Spiker was asked concerning freezing of foods, she explained that freezing will not replace canning. Such things as tomatoes and salad greens and the like, cannot be frozen successfully as yet.

A large number of interested people attended the exhibit.

The pilot of the ill-fated ship was said to have been able to walk away following the emergency landing, and ambulances which had been rushed to the scene were not needed.

Martin Shys From War Bonus Question

HARRISBURG, Aug. 7.—(INS)—Gov. Edward Martin Tuesday skirted a query whether he had any plan under consideration for effecting a bonus for World War II veterans.

"There is only one plan," he said, "and that is to die down in our pockets and get the money."

He emphasized that veterans would have to pay approximately four-fifths of the cost through increased state taxes. The overall cost of a bonus has been estimated unofficially at $300,000,000.
